ECONOMIC IMPACT

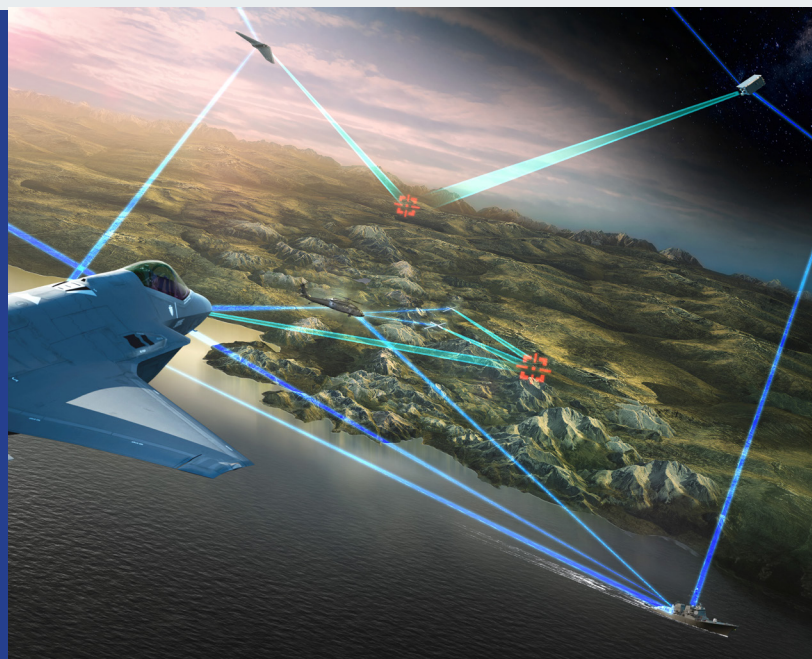

- In 2025, Lockheed Martin had 12,825 suppliers – 93% across the U.S. and 7% around the globe – and awarded $7.0B to more than 6,900 small business suppliers.
- Lockheed Martin has committed $51B to our suppliers across every U.S. state and 52 countries.

PRESSURE-TESTED INNOVATION

The 21st Century Security® environment is rapidly evolving. The face of the world and warfare has changed, and threats to national defense have expanded beyond land, sky and sea. Success depends on dominance in all domains.

Yesterday's approach isn't good enough for today's demands. Modern forces require a combat-proven mission partner and integrator that can connect platforms, networks and people to stay ahead of threats and deliver on a mission need.

No threat exists in a vacuum, so innovation and integration must be done with intent, ensuring that defense solutions aren't just new – they're immediately useful. That's key to moving with speed from emerging need to delivered capability.

ACCELERATING TRANSFORMATION

Lockheed Martin is accelerating transformation across defense and aerospace by delivering proven capability faster, at scale and with greater certainty. Aligned with the Department of War's Acquisition Transformation Strategy we are turning reform into execution through a set of concrete actions that strengthen performance, increase speed, and advance readiness for the U.S. military and its allied partners.

Our strategy reflects modernizing production, integrating innovation faster and delivering capability when and where it is needed.

- Delivering at Scale - Meeting mission demand with speed, volume and certainty for the warfighter.
- Unmatched Innovation - Advancing proven innovation and defense tech that can be fielded faster.
- Investing in Performance - Strengthening the foundation for speed, scale and readiness. alliances.
